1. POLICY

- a. It is the policy of CIA, in pursuance of law, that employees will not accept gifts, money, or other materials of monetary value from any individual or group of individuals engaged in any aspect of contractual relations with this Agency or where there is any indication that the employee has received the gift because of his official position.
- b. This policy is not intended to interfere with the receipt of gifts by CIA personnel from persons from whom they would normally receive such gifts were the official relationship not present.
- c. This policy is established for the protection of CIA and its individual employees.
- d. Personnel under cover shall, as cover considerations dictate, comply with the regulations and practices of their cover organization in regard to the acceptance of gifts, money, or other materials of monetary value. They shall, however, submit a report to this Agency in accordance with paragraph 3.

F. When a gift is presented by an official or employee of a foreign government and refusal of the gift might embarrass the U. S. Government, this Agency, or a cover organization, the gift may be accepted and then turned over to the Agency for disposition. The reporting and disposition requirements of [REDACTED] Foreign Awards and Decorations, will be observed.
